

San Antonio Express-News

ExpressNews.com | mySA.com

The 4 new San Antonio restaurants to get your Creole fix

By Paul Stephen | June 5, 2017

The past three months have been kind to San Antonio. The city is now home to four more Louisiana-inspired spots featuring gumbo, crawfish and other Cajun and Creole favorites.

Half of the newcomers are locally owned and operated, the other two new entries hailing from well-established brands.

The Lost Cajun, 5602 W. Hausman Road, Suite 102: Based in Colorado, this family of restaurants opened its first San Antonio branch in March. 210-455-2757, thelostcajun.com.